

Resume de mon CV:

Dr. Paul Scholte is an ecologist, specialised in Conservation in a Development context. He has 25 years experience in protected area- and rangeland management, biodiversity inventories, governance, rural development, ecotourism, training and education (Universities of Wageningen, Leiden, Chad and Rwanda, Wildlife colleges in Garoua and Rwanda). He has ample experience with the management, formulation and evaluation of programs in the main global ecosystems, based on which he authored some 100 publications. During his assignments Paul assured the on-the-job training of staff and supervised 30 (post-graduate) students. His interventions, at the interface of practice, policy & science, are further based on:

- Networking & consensus building amongst specialists (IUCN-SSC/CEM, advisory councils)
- Firsthand knowledge of international cooperation policies and financing mechanisms
- Marketing of conservation through mass media.
